Man. This is not a blog entry. See yesterday's entry for that! Quickly:

The absolutely lovely Susan Adrian interviewed me on her blog. If you go there and comment on the entry with the word ~sparkle~ (where does she gets this stuff? Sparkle???) you will be entered in a drawn to win a copy of Cracked Up to Be! So... go do that! You only have until tomorrow Montana time. I don't know when tomorrow happens in Montana but I'm pretty sure they're like, two hours behind me.

I have another guestblog up at The Swivet. It's about building a working relationship with your editor. Read it here.

My copies of Cracked Up to Be arrived in the mail from Chapters today. TODAY! Aaah! I'm not ready yet! I had four days of prep planned!! Anyway, I opened the package and squealed and I was like, "Look! Look at my books!" And then the mean people I happened to be standing near (AKA MY FAMILY) were all, "They look just like the finished copies your publisher sent you." And now I'm not speaking to them.

Here is my review of New Moon which turned into a tirade against Jacob Black. Yeah, idk. He doesn't sparkle. I should've just left it at that because that says it all Happy Friday, bbs!
